New Office Building Opened by Greenfield Electric Light Co.

The new office building of the Greenfield Electric Light and Power Company, which has been under construction throughout the summer, was officially opened for inspection on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Visitors were shown through the various departments in order that they may become familiar with the building and equipment, which is said to be the finest of its kind in New England.

The building, located on Federal street, has a frontage of 64 feet and extends eastward for a distance of 108 feet.

The entire building has been constructed on a basis of permanency and general simplicity of design. Ample provision has been made throughout the various departments for even an abnormal growth of the community within the next few years. The offices and rooms of the building have been equipped with various types and style of lighting equipment so that the customers of the company can have before them an actual demonstration of efficient illumination.

One enters the building from Federal street into a spacious customers' room. On the extreme right is the telephone and information booth, next the cashier's booth, and then the entrance to the general corridor leading the entire length of the building. On the extreme left is the service desk. At this desk applications for new service or complaints in regard to service are received and taken care of. To the rear opening off the main corridor are the billing and bookkeeping stenographic rooms, telephone exchange. Owing to the fact that all billing is now being done by machines the ceiling of this room, together with the room of the stenographers and several of the private offices, is of special sound-deadening and sound-proofing material. The floors throughout the working part of the building are of rubber tile.

The telephone room adjoins the billing department and is equipped with communicating dial phone by which it is possible for officers of the company to communicate with other officers both in Greenfield and Turners Falls directly without the services of a telephone operator.

Adjacent to the billing department is a fireproof vault in which all records pertaining to the billing department and customers' accounts are kept.

Across the corridor from the billing department is the bookkeeping department. In this room all the general bookkeeping operations of the corporation will be carried on. Immediately back of this room is the assistant treasurer's office, and from here the work of both the billing department and the accounting department is directed. Immediately back of this room is the stenographers' room. All of these officers are illuminated by means of a semi-indirect light which has proven the most efficient for this type of work and the windows are provided with special glazing.

The president's office is located in the northeast corner of the building. This room has been laid out in old Colonial style and is illuminated by a totally indirect lighting system. No lights are visible to the eye upon entering this room. Adjoining the president's office is the chief engineer's room, and in the southeast corner is the general manager's quarters. Both of these rooms are illuminated by indirect lighting and differ from the illumination in the president's office by obtaining light from standard fixtures instead of a cove lighting system which is a portion of the building itself.

Adjoining the general manager's quarters on the west, is a general conference room followed by a general commercial room.

A large demonstration room is located on the north side of the basement and opening through archways on the west, there are an attractive dining room and finely equipped kitchen. These three rooms are to be used as a unit for a number of purposes. The company will here, through means of demonstrations and lectures, acquaint its customers with the latest developments in electrical appliances and apparatus for home work. The rooms will also be used for assemblies.

NEEDS FOR RED CROSS SERVICE ON INCREASE, SAYS CHAIRMAN PAYNE

Disaster Relief and Service to War Veterans Make Heavy Demands—First Aid on Highways New Plan.

Demands upon the public services that the American Red Cross is organized to give are increasingly heavy, and will continue to be so in the future, John Barton Payne, chairman, has announced.

The two major services of the society—service to war veterans and their dependents, and relief in disasters—show each year a greater number of persons helped by the Red Cross.

Pension legislation passed recently for World War Veterans, and increased allotments to all Spanish-American War Veterans, have given to Chapters and the national society many thousands of additional cases to handle, Judge Payne said.

In the past year help was given in 108 disasters. Ninety of these were in the United States, twelve in foreign possessions and six were in foreign countries.

Health activities of the Red Cross also are being extended, especially in the rural communities where all health authorities agree the greatest need exists. Red Cross, with 794 nurses in its employ, is the greatest employer of public health nurses in rural areas in the United States.

In its campaign against accidental deaths, begun twenty years ago with its life saving and first aid programs, the Red Cross now has adopted an additional program—that of combating the huge toll of life from automobile accidents on the highways.

Expenditures of the Red Cross in the past year were $4,254,796.34, of which $1,208,151.09 was spent in disaster relief, the chairman pointed out.

"The Red Cross depends upon the public for its support, through their memberships enrolled once each year in the period from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving Day," Judge Payne said.

"We do not receive any support from the Government, or through other taxation, although as the President of the United States is president of the society, and one-third of its governing members are representatives of U. S. Departments, it ranks as a semi-governmental agency.

"By joining as a member, in the local Red Cross Chapter, once each year, during the annual Roll Call, every citizen will have a part in carrying on this great humanitarian task."

FRANKLIN CO. TEACHERS TO MEET IN GREENFIELD

Teachers of Franklin county will play a prominent part in the program of the 44th annual meeting of the Franklin County Teachers' association at the Greenfield high school. Normal school heads and instructors, college professors and other experts will also be heard on various phases of education.

An exhibition of drawing and art work done in various schools of the county will be given in the library of the school and the vocational departments of the Greenfield system will be open for inspection. Mildred M. Hartwell, principal of the Federal street school and president of the Greenfield Parent-Teacher Association, will report on the Massachusetts Teachers' Association and Principal E. B. Smith of the high school will make a similar report on the National Education association convention.

President Howard M. Porter of Greenfield will open the meeting and a scripture reading and prayer by Rev. Verne L. Smith of Greenfield will follow. The convention will hear as a body address by Frank Wright, deputy commissioner of education, and by Supt. James N. Muir of Quincy.

At 11:30 the assembly will divide into six sectional meetings for talks and round table discussions of various special phases.

FORMER NORTHFIELD BOY KILLED AT SPRINGFIELD

Lester Hill, Jr., 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Hill of Springfield, former residents of this town, was fatally injured late Saturday when he was struck by an automobile operated by Herbert A. Shumway of 62 Biltmore street, Springfield. The accident occurred on Dickinson street, near Trenton street while the boy was returning from an errand. He had a scooter with him at the time but whether he was riding it or not has not been verified.

Young Hill had a bag of groceries clutched in his hand when he was seen by the driver of the automobile, who was behind him. Shumway put on his brakes but the car apparently skidded and pushed the boy against the curb. He was thrown to the pavement, and struck on his head. Mr. Shumway took the boy to the Weason Memorial hospital where he died 45 minutes later.

DR. W. W. COE WILL AGAIN BE CAPTAIN OF RED CROSS DRIVE

W. W. Coe has been appointed by the Hon. John W. Haigis, president of the Franklin County Red Cross, to head the Northfield campaign beginning on Armistice Day and continuing until Thanksgiving Day. Mr. Coe is getting his forces together and with as efficient help as he had last year he is confident of another generous response. The captains and their districts will be announced in the Press next week.

Mr. Lane Cross of Northfield has been elected to the Law Review Board, upperclass honorary society at the Boston University school of law. He is a junior at the school.

"Join Red Cross," Urges Vice President Curtis

America's prominent citizens join in urging all men and women to become members of the Red Cross during the period of the annual roll call from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving Day.

The Honorable Charles Curtis, Vice President of the United States, says: "The American Red Cross is in a position to and does more to relieve those stricken by misfortune than any other organization in the world. Its splendid work has done much to bring a friendly feeling in all parts of the world for the people of our country because they sustain the American Red Cross. This wonderful organization is entitled to the liberal support of our people."

The Honorable Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, says: "No one can predict when or where disaster may occur or acute emergency arise. The American Red Cross represents our community insurance against such misfortunes. The organization stands ready at all times to render speedy relief to any stricken area in our own country or to assist in the relief of disaster in foreign countries. The Red Cross is the agency which carries on when emergency has disrupted customary modes and means of life in a community."

Behavior is the theory of manners practically applied—Minnie Necker.

Political, Social, and Economic Aspects of the Proposed Repeal of the Mass. Liquor Law

The following is a brief summary of the propositions advanced and supported by Professor Thomas Nixon Carver, Professor of Economics in Harvard University, in a pamphlet of 22 pages which can be obtained from the Secretary of the Opposed-to-Repeal Committee, whose address is given below.

SUMMARY

Many countries, each in its own way, are striving to reduce the evils of drink. Our own method, whether it is the best or not, is entitled to the observance and support of very good citizen until it is changed in a lawful way. Deliberate attempts to defeat this method by encouraging and making easy the violation of our liquor laws constitute nullification, and nullification is an ugly thing.

Prohibition of some sort, national, state or local is necessary. In spite of education, moral suasion and all other means used to combat the liquor evil, the commercial liquor interests were, up to the year 1907 at least, successful in their efforts to increase the sale and consumption of their products. In the year mentioned, the per capita consumption of alcoholic beverages in this country reached the figure of 2.76 gallons, and it remained near that figure till after 1914. Drink conditions of that time were very bad, especially among those dependent on their daily wages for the support of their families.

Massachusetts cannot, in any sense, afford to take a step that will make the work of the rumrunner and the bootlegger safe and easy within her territory. Drink reduces the earning power of the individual worker, and the liquor business competes with every legitimate business for the consumers' spending money.

Mass. State Grange Opposes Repeal of Baby Volstead Act and Passage of Anti Steel Trap Bill

Desiring that everyone shall clearly understand the Grange attitude on two Referendum Questions that will be on the Massachusetts ballot Nov. 4th, this statement of position is made, favoring an emphatic "No" vote on both questions. In each instance the Grange attitude is the direct vote of the Massachusetts State Grange, at its annual session in Worcester, December 10-12, 1929.

QUESTION NO 2 ON THE BALLOT
Repeal of the State Enforcement Law on Prohibition

("Baby Volstead" Law, so-called)
The Massachusetts State Grange opposes repeal and urges all its members to vote "No" because:

Repeal means tying the hands of 6,000 state and local officers who would otherwise assist in capturing liquor law violators.

Repeal means tremendously increased danger upon the highways and greater defiance of other laws.

Repeal means endangering the lives of thousands of children of the Commonwealth and nullifying the state-wide efforts to promote public safety.

Repeal means one step nearer the return of the old saloon.

Repeal means an attempt to destroy a national law inciting lawlessness in Massachusetts.

Repeal means that Massachusetts is shirking her duty to help uphold and enforce Federal law.

Repeal means writing a chapter of shame into our Tercentenary Year, and turning back the pages of Massachusetts progress.

The Massachusetts State Grange is unanimously on record against repeal. See Page 88, Journal of Proceedings, Session of 1929.

QUESTION NO 3 ON THE BALLOT The Anti Steel Trap Bill

The Massachusetts State Grange opposes this measure and urges all its members to vote "No."

Because this bill interferes with the right of the land owner to prevent vermin doing damage upon his own property.

Because no practical trap has yet been devised that will either "take alive or unhurt or kill at once" animals for which it is set; therefore this bill in actual effect prohibits all trapping beyond the 50-yard limit.

Because the "humane aspect" of the question is chiefly a blind and a "smoke screen, designed to confuse the issue. It is no less human to trap animals beyond a 50-yard limit than it is within that limit.

Because the increase of destructive animals in the woods, if they can no longer be trapped, will surely result in wide-spread injury to the bird life of the Commonwealth in spite of all other efforts made to preserve it.

The Massachusetts State Grange is unanimously on record against such proposal as are contained in Question No. 3. See pages 119 and 120, Journal of Proceedings, Session of 1929.

For the information of the voters of the Commonwealth the above statement of the position of the Massachusetts State Grange, on these two important Referendum Questions, is made by its Executive Committee.

FRANKLIN COUNTY CLUB ENTERTAINED AT MT. HERMON

On Saturday, October 24th, the Club met at Mount Hermon and was entertained most royally. The business meeting was held in the morning at 11 o'clock in the Chapel, presided over by the President, Mrs. Richard Watson. The club in a body attended the Chapel exercises and listened to Prof. Duly give a resume of the current events.

Dinner was served to 62 in West Hall and the chef certainly outdid himself. The afternoon meeting was held in the home of Dr. and Mrs. Cutler, the Doctor welcoming the guests in his usual cordial and genial manner. Mr. L'Hommedieu rendered a number of selections on the piano and Mrs. L. L. Norton read a paper recounting their visit to Geneva last summer. There were a number of short talks by Miss Margaret Burr '08, president of the New York Club; Miss Harriet Yates '22-26, president of the Boston Club; Marjorie Ware Johnson '06 from the Chicago Club and the beloved Misses Silverthorne. ## ON QUESTION No. 3

THE HUMANE TRAPPING ACT

The steel-jawed trap—the common steel trap now in use—is one of the outstanding atrocities of our age! On the State ballot, Question No. 3, is a measure to abolish this evil. Our little furred folk are entitled to humane treatment—a humane death, insofar as is practicable. Let them be caught in traps that kill them at once or that take them alive unhurt.

These traps are available for at least 95% of our fur-bearers—the balance can be controlled by other means. The bill's enactment will not be detrimental to bird life. It will work no economic hardship. The farmer, gardner and poultry-raiser are fully protected.

Flood control is getting down to a sensible basis when it begins to think of establishing a lake in each county to care for flood waters. A lake in each county in the state would withhold from streams at flood time the excess of water. It would, through the evaporation of water, make impossible hot winds, and vegetation and crops would not suffer nearly so much from long dry spells as they do now. In addition to these utilitarian values the lakes would furnish splendid recreation centers for the great mass of people who are not financially able to take vacations each summer into the land of fish and lakes. Flood prevention of this type is made more sane, sensible and practicable than spending millions on river channels which have been encroached upon by a greedy people who have built their homes too close to the river channel and robbed it of its natural course.

"ISMS"

"The fatal flaw in communism, socialism and all the other radical isms is not what they would do to a few rich people but what they would do to all the people," says the San Francisco Chronicle. "These schemes are all based on the common factors of standardization and efficiency."

"Radicals are non-conformists who preach conformity. That is why the scheme does not work. Efficiency is a fine thing while it serves man. It is a burden when it is exalted above mankind."

The socialistic-communistic theory of government would turn the individual into a rubber stamp. One man would be exactly like the next, and any who protested against the process of standardization would feel the weight of the communistic heel. The spectacle of modern Russia with its millions of poorly-clothed, half-fed government-enforced robots shows what we may expect of communism.

In this country one kind of ism which in its result is indistinguishable from communism and socialism, has made great headway—namely, paternalism. The government has taken it upon itself to rule on questions of conduct that were once upon a time individual citizen personality. There is a growing school of politicians which frowns upon individual enterprise and initiative and advocates a great broadening of the powers of government. Communism in Russia, which is nothing but paternalism carried to the ultimate end, has made rubber stamps of its people.

TWO-MINUTE SERMONS

By REV. GEORGE HENRY
Do Something

Church attendance is not as general as it should be. Why? The great multitude who attended upon the ministry of Jesus Christ always interests us. How did he get the multitude to come to him? He did not advertise; He did not make a show; He apparently made no effort to draw the crowd. Sometimes He sought to escape the multitude. What drew them? Mark drew them? Mark tells us that "they heard what great things He did." That was all, but that was enough. He simply "went about doing good," and they came to Him. Suppose church people spend as much time and thought and energy and money doing good as they usually spend in schemes to catch the crowd? I really think we have gotten hold of this thing from the wrong end. We have put the emphasis upon attendance, when it should be put upon doing something for those who attend. Perhaps the crowd would come if we did not say a word about attendance; if we just forgot to count the number present and got busy doing good.

EDUCATORS ISSUE STATEMENTS OPPOSING REPEAL

Edicott Peabody, head master of Groton—Sam B. Warner of Harvard Law School and J. Edgar Park, President of Wheaton College take stand against Repeal of State Enforcement Law.

Three outstanding men in educational circles of the State of Massachusetts have made statements opposing the repeal of the State enforcement law through Professor Edwin H. Hall of Cambridge, secretary of the Opposed-To-Repeal Committee "for the press and public. They are as follows:

ENDICOTT PEABODY says: "To my mind the repeal would work serious moral harm to the people of this state and would be likely to increase the danger of motoring on the high-roads. This view was strengthened by the testimony of the head of the State Police, a man who is especially competent to form a sane judgment in regard to the situation."

SAM B. WARNER of Harvard Law School writes: "I am unqualifiedly opposed to the repeal of the Massachusetts act against the manufacture and transportation of liquor. To make as far as Massachusetts law is concerned, the manufacture and transportation of liquor lawful, but its sale unlawful, would be to create an extremely undesirable situation. It would, of course, increase the difficulties of enforcement and the evils committant upon lax enforcement. In addition, it would in many quarters be considered as an excuse for non-observance of the Volstead Act and the general flaunting of law.

"As long as the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Act are law, the states should cooperate wholeheartedly with the federal government in securing their observance and enforcement."

(Signed) Sam B. Warner
J. EDGAR PARK, president of Wheaton College and well known as an author makes the following statement:

"There are those who think that Prohibition is working so badly that anything would be better. They are, therefore, apt to favor any change of any kind. This is generally the attitude of an irritated person in a bad temper. If the Prohibition problem is considered in a common-sense way it is clear that the repeal of a portion of our existing state enforcement act cannot either further temperance or help the industry of Massachusetts.

"Those who desire a legal drink and those who desire only the intellectual satisfaction of knowing that they could have a legal drink if they wanted one are inclined to register their annoyance by supporting this repeal. But one might just as well be rational even when angry and recognize that as a gesture of indignation the repeal would be both futile and dangerous."

(signed) J. Edgar Park

Eight Propositions on Repeal of Mass. Baby Volstead Act

1. Practically every one admits that the liquor traffic must be controlled by law. Even the opponents of prohibition generally insist that they do not want the saloon back again. The only question is, what kind of control shall we have?

2. It is now proposed to repeal that section of the statutes of the Commonwealth which prohibits the manufacture and transportation of intoxicating liquor. Such repeal would not touch the existing Massachusetts statutes prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquor.

3. After such repeal, anyone could manufacture and transport intoxicating liquor quantities without interference by State officers. Such officers, seeing liquor moving freely without having authority to interfere, would at once lose zeal to enforce the law forbidding sale. The supply of boot-leg liquor would be greatly increased, its price lowered, and far more of it would be sold.

4. The seller of intoxicating liquor would still be floating the State law, as well as the Federal law. The effect of this repeal would be to make it easier for him to procure liquor and to break the law. It would therefore increase rather than decrease the floating of law, which those opposed to prohibition declare is undermining the foundations of our social structure.

5. It would also encourage and increase the use of liquor by those in all classes of society to whom the habit of drinking is not a mere pleasant convivial custom but an overpowering vice, bringing ruin upon its victims.

6. It would increase drunken driving of automobiles and make our highways more dangerous.

7. It would reduce the efficiency of our industries at a time when they are suffering from keen competition from the South and the West.

8. Massachusetts cannot hope to secure a repeal of the Volstead Act or of the Eighteenth Amendment by encouraging the illegal sale of liquor within its own borders. The increased lawlessness and misfortune which would result would probably be charged by the dry states to intentional laxity of enforcement and not to inherent defects in the law.

Dollars and Doughnuts

By H. LOUIS RAYBOLD

(Copyright.)

POLLY ANDREWS sat at her desk in the room she was pleased to call her "office" with her chin cupped in her two slim hands. She was thinking deeply.

Except for the fact that her glance was turned inward rather than outward, she could see through the glass doors eight empty gray enameled tables, flanked with their chairs, on the center of each table a spotless dolly with yellow daffodils in a crystal vase. So would the scene remain all day. Charming—and unoccupied. Oh, possibly one or two old customers would drop in for doughnuts and coffee. But there would be no steady stream of patrons hanging in profits and going away to advertise.

The assistant superintendent of the contracting company which was engineering the job, coming in one day with Peter Drake, one of the young surveyors, had advised her to move her quarters.

"Why, I couldn't do that!" Polly had exclaimed. "The investment would be too great. Because this is my home, I can figure my rental as very little."

He was a nice young fellow, the assistant superintendent. Almost as nice as Peter Drake who had drummed up a lot of trade for her among the men. John Cary his name was and she remembered how he had leaned across the little candy counter. "Where you made your mistake," he said gravely, "was in the sign you hung out."

"What do you mean?" she had queried blankly. "It should have been 'Ye Doughnutte Shoppe.' Change it to that and you'll see what will happen."

Recalling the instance, she smiled. If she could only put up a sign over the main road so alluring that cars would read it, stop, and detour around!

But what an unusual sign that would have to be!

Suddenly she grinned. "It can't do any harm," she said to herself. "I'm at the last ditch anyhow." Dimpling, she rose, went over to the telephone and called up a sign painter.

Four months later, John Cary, driving his roadster along the new road at a mean forty-five, suddenly put on his brakes. "My eyesight must have deceived me, but I am going to find out." And he backed to the sign he had just passed.

DOUGHNUTS

ONE DOLLAR EACH

"Can it be?" he mused, "that our friend Polly has found a recipe for making doughnuts worth that? I shall have to find out."

If a dozen cars were already parked before the old slope roofed house which Cary noticed had been freshly painted with a cunning green lattice over the doorway that, matched the blinds. The place advertised prosperity.

Then he saw Polly coming toward him, the same winsome Polly, yet with a new little air about her. An air of success.

"How do you do?" she said cordially and held out her hand. He seemed like a very old friend because he had known her in the days of her discouragement.

"Tell me about it," he begged presently.

Polly beckoned to her assistant. "Mr. Cary will have the usual service," she said.

When the white-napkin tray was set before him, he looked at it in amazement. Two dainty sandwiches, a cup of coffee, relish, a generous slice of cake, and—the inevitable doughnut in the very center of the tray!

"Exactly!" said Polly. "The rest is thrown in with the doughnut. It is all a matter of psychology. I catch 'em by shocking 'em. They are curious to see who could possibly have the nerve to charge a dollar for a doughnut and figure they'll be only stung once. Then, they're so delighted at the way they've been fooled, they come again and again and bring their friends. And I'm getting a dollar for the same stuff that I couldn't get fifty cents for before!"

Cary regarded her with admiration. "You and I," he said, "ought to start a chain of Doughnut-for-a-Dollar Shops on the cross country routes of travel. It's a great idea. Do you know," he went on thoughtfully, "I've thought a great deal about you since the days we used to drop in while the road construction was on. May I—may I come to see you again?"

"Of course," said Polly. "We welcome repeaters, you know." Then she smiled mischievously. "Any day, but next Thursday."

Cary looked puzzled. "Next Thursday?" he asked.

Polly smiled gently. "That is the day Peter Drake and I are to be married," she said.

Indiana Like Movies, Radio

Pennants of India have taken to the movies and the radio. They especially delight in acting for the films which are made and afterwards shown by traveling exhibitors in the villages with a view to instructing their fellows in better modes of life. The pennants call the loud speaker "the iron voice," and admire it because it does not contract the septic throat, usually the lot of the human being who lectures in a Punjab village.

"A NATION WIDE STORE"
Northfield, Mass.

Happiness is largely a matter of attitude of mind and appreciation of the things one has. Some are unhappy if they do not have a new car every time the model changes, others are happy and content to ride in any kind of a car just so it is in good mechanical condition and gets them to their destination and back. Some are unhappy because the system of living requires that they work all the time, others are glad that they have regular employment and so on, down the line. Whether or not one is happy depends on one's attitude. The ability to appreciate what one has and still look ahead for something better is indeed a happy faculty.

As the investigation of Chicago's vice ring proceeds, it becomes more and more clear that lawlessness is not confined alone to the few violators who come within the clutches of the law. For every gangster in Chicago, there is a half dozen higher up, who, while they do not carry guns and do the actual killing, make possible the operation of the gangsters and if any thing, are more guilty than the morons who actually carry out orders. As a matter of fact, the presence of gangsters in Chicago or any other city is merely the outward evidence of internal corruption.

Ford Digs Two Mile Tunnel for A Billion Gallons of Water a Day

NEARLY a billion gallons of water a day—more than is used by the cities of Detroit, Philadelphia, Cincinnati and Washington combined—will be the capacity of a huge tunnel now nearing completion at the Rouge Plant of the Ford Motor Company, Dearborn, Michigan.

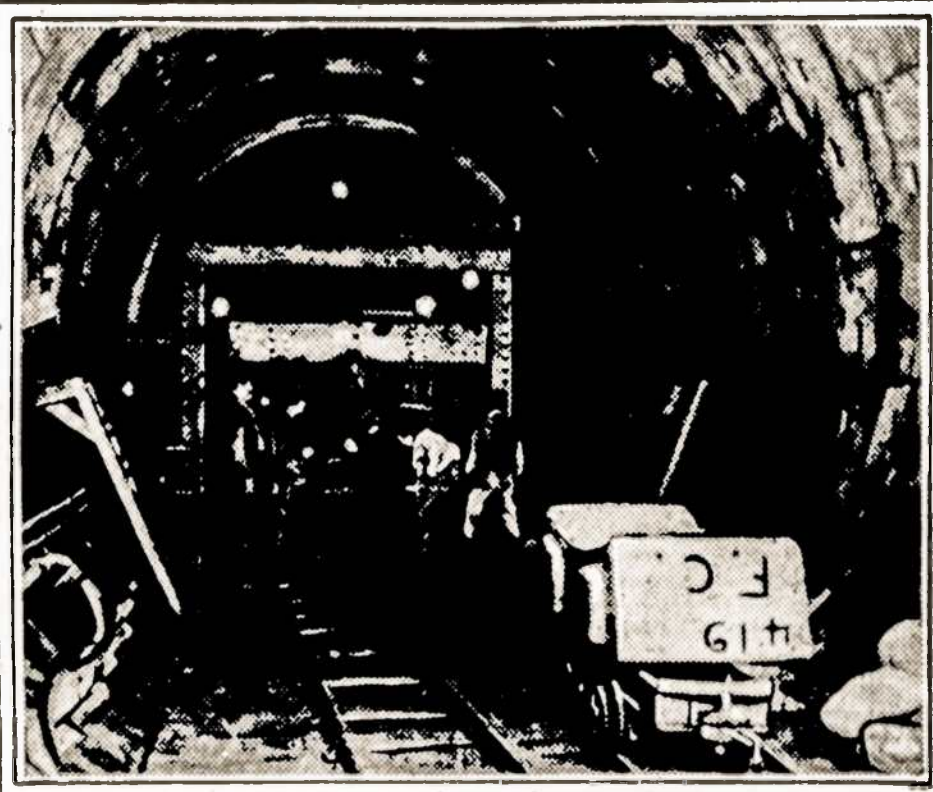

The tunnel will replace the present water intake system which supplies the Ford plants with 500,000,000 gallons a day. At the same time the company is remodeling its power house to greatly increase the power output. Both improvements, costing several million dollars, are being made to enlarge the production facilities of the Ford plant.

Sixty Feet Under Ground

In constructing the waterway, the largest of its kind ever undertaken by a single business concern, the engineers are burrowing sixty feet under ground for a distance of two and a fifth miles. They have gone under main highways, railroads, street car tracks, bridges, a cemetery and a creek.

One of the most difficult tasks was that of tunneling under Baby Creek at a point which is crossed by a railroad bridge and where also a large sewer is under construction by the city of Detroit. The piles that provide the foundation for the bridge and those driven by the company constructing the sewer formed a network on each side of the creek. It was the task of the Ford engineers to burrow under the creek, sewer and bridge, going between the piles without striking or weakening them.

Boring of the tunnel is accomplished by means of a shield—a large steel cylinder fourteen feet long and twenty-one feet in outside diameter with a solid steel shell or skin two and a fourth inches thick. This shield has a bulkhead which is made fast near the front end. There are four openings through which the mud streams, like toothpaste from a tube, as the shield is shoved forward by twenty powerful hydraulic jacks.

When the shield has been pushed forward sufficiently concrete blocks two and a half feet wide and five feet long, each weighing 3,420 pounds, are placed to form a ring around the circumference of the tunnel. One of them acts as a keystone so that the lining of concrete, which is eighteen inches thick, withstands the pressure of the earth. After this steel forms are set up and filled with concrete to form a solid inner lining which is also eighteen inches thick.

The present intake system of the Ford plant has a capacity of 500,000,000 gallons a day. The new tunnel will be able to carry 913,600,000 gallons.

Miscellaneous Shower Given
Miss Dorothy Smith was given a miscellaneous shower by the teachers and girls of Powers Institute at Cushman hall on Friday afternoon. Twenty-eight were present and a mock marriage was held with Miss Lena Carkings as minister, Miss Eunice Adams groom, and Miss Margaret Buchanan as bride. Many useful gifts were showered on the bride and refreshments were served.

Community Club Gives Recital

The recital in the town hall under the auspices of the Community club Friday night was much appreciated by a good sized audience. The program consisted of piano numbers by Judson Ewer of Leyden and solos by Miss Jane Jefferson Shaffer of Northfield Seminary. Miss Shaffer was accompanied by Miss Marion Keller, also from the seminary. There were also cello numbers by Warren Brigham of Shelburne, accompanied by Mrs. Frank Maxwell of Greenfield. Dr. W. H. Pierce gave a short talk on the history of Colonial church music and the cello.

An interesting feature was the fact that the cello which Mr. Brigham played was about 185 years old. The instrument was one used in the church at Westminister, Vt., where Dr. Pierce lived as a boy and was played until the time when organs were introduced. The cello was put away and after some time, Dr. Pierce's brother found it and it eventually came into the hands of Mr. Brigham, who had it made over.

Kitchen Shower for Miss Allen

Miss Marjorie Allen was given a kitchen shower Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. Dwight Moody where 14 ladies were present. A mock marriage was held; Mrs. Moody acted as the minister. Miss Florence Wright was the bride and Miss Ruth Atherton the groom. A child's cart was decorated with yellow and white crepe paper and all the packages were inside. Little Marjorie Moody drew the cart and presented the gifts to Miss Allen. Refreshments were served. Miss Allen was also given a shower in Shelburne Falls on Wednesday evening by the Girls club.

AUTO OVERTURNS AT BERNARDSTON CROSSING

An automobile going west just escaped a collision with a southbound train about 8 o'clock Sunday morning. The car contained two men who did not see the train until it was too late to go over the crossing. They put on the brakes so quickly the car was overturned, but no one was hurt and no damage was done.

Thorton W. Burgess To Speak Over Radio On Humane Trapping Act.

Thorton W. Burgess comes back on the air next Sunday evening, at 9.15, over WBX-WBZA, when he will speak on the Humane Trapping Act, sponsored by the Anti-Steel-Trap League, Massachusetts Division, Inc. This act will have a place on the ballot in next Tuesday's election, as Question No. 3, for the acceptance or rejection of the voters of the state.

Mr. Burgess will speak from the Springfield station. Springfield is his home town, as all nature-lovers know. When he said good-bye to the many thousands who always tuned in on his Saturday evening Radio Nature League programs, there was keen regret all over New England, particularly on the part of the youngsters. Sunday evening will be his first appearance before a radio audience since his farewell talk, some months ago. Mr. Burgess is said to have the largest radio following of any person in New England, and his return is hailed as an event in the radio world.

VEGETARIAN MEALS

THE expression "cabbages and kings" usually signifies a wide scope of subjects, ranging from the lowly to the great. If you lived in France and were addressed as "mon chou" (my cabbage), you would have no reason to feel insulted, whereas, in America, we look upon the cabbage as a lowly thing and a person dubbed a cabbage-head as even lower. In French "mon chou" is a term of endearment.

Perhaps the reason lies in the fact that to the French person, every vegetable—even those of the most humble origin—take high rank among foods. Americans, however, are more and more coming to this opinion. Hence the growing popularity of the vegetable dinner, or the vegetable plate as the main course of a dinner. One proof of its increasing importance is the fact that most dinner services now include compartment plates especially designed to hold invitingly a variety of vegetables.

Choosing Harmonious Vegetables

And what a glowing, tempting assortment such a vegetable plate presents if the vegetables are chosen from the angle of the artist and epicure! The first requisite of a well-composed vegetable dinner is that it displays an attractive variety of color and form, since foods must please the eye before they pass palate inspection. Secondly, they must satisfy the taste; and thirdly, they must afford pleasing and healthful after-effects.

Does this sound complex? It is most simple indeed. Let us look first at color. For green, we have at our bidding spinach, string beans, lima beans, Brussels sprouts, okra, green peppers, turnip greens and scores of other greens. Red is a vivid color contrast to green, and it is plentifully afforded in tomatoes, beets, kidney beans, pimiento and other delicious vegetables.

In every color assortment there will perhaps be some light color vegetables, and here you may select from celery, corn, asparagus, wax beans, hominy, sauerkraut or cabbage. And with these paler vegetables the pleasant glow of carrots, sweet potatoes, yellow turnips, or the warm brown of baked beans or mushrooms will be a welcome contrast.

Color, Texture and Shape

Canned vegetables are, of course, always plentifully used in the vegetarian dinner, and their colors are quite as inviting as those of the fresh vegetables since the canner now packs vegetables in the popular sanitary enamel-lined can which serve to preserve perfectly their natural colors.

Texture is as important as color in the choice of vegetables in combination. For instance, the perfect vegetable plate will include some of the soft vegetables, such as peas, asparagus or tomatoes; some of the more chewy ones, such as string beans, spinach, carrots, corn and so forth; and at least one of the crisp or leafy vegetables such as celery, endive or lettuce.

Also, there are myriads of ways of cooking vegetables and fascinating shapes into which they may be cut; so be sure that you do not serve all of your vegetables creamed or all of them mashed. If you favor fluffy mashed potatoes—and they are hard to beat!—be sure to see also that your carrots are cut in long thin silvers and simmered golden brown in butter, that your tomatoes are baked a jolly deep red, and that your string beans are scalloped in cream. There is a great variety of ways to season vegetables to make them pleasingly different.

"Dinner Is Served"

Suppose we plan to serve a dinner that will be varied, colorful, and dietetically correct, and we feature as its main course an attractive vegetable plate. The introduction may be either a soup—jellied, creamed or clear—or a gay decorative canapé. Fish, egg or cheese are excellent choices for canapés, and a tiny cheese rarebit served on circles of sautéed toast with a dash of paprika is a perfect pièce de résistance.

For the main dish, or vegetable plate, a harmonious trio would be pea croquettes, beets stuffed with peas and lima beans, and sautéed corn and pimiento. With this sort of dinner it is not necessary to serve a salad, but dessert may add greatly to the meal. It may be a fairly substantial dessert, and it will be especially welcome if it includes the sweet and fruit quota of the meal. Among the most popular desserts for vegetarian meals are berry shortcake, made from either canned or fresh berries, fruit cobbler with nutmeg sauce, or flaky fruit pie, topped with a generous serving of whipped cream.

Saving Mothers and Babies Is Important Red Cross Task

Saving mothers' lives and better babies were important features during the past year of the Public Health Nursing Service of the American Red Cross. About four-fifths of the 794 nurses in the Red Cross work made more than 100,000 prenatal and maternal visits, in addition to assisting doctors in the examination of 1,309,409 school children.

Statistics reveal that the lives of two out of three American women who die in maternity cases could be saved if they received proper medical and nursing care. As more than 15,000 women die in the United States each year from various diseases of the maternal state, this means that more than 10,000 of these deaths are preventable.

Comfort Kits Sent 40,000 Service Men by Red Cross

Gay patterned cretonne bags, comfort kits, containing articles useful and amusing, are sent by the Red Cross to 40,000 soldiers, sailors and Marines, on foreign service, as Christmas remembrances.

The little gift bags are donated and packed by women in Red Cross Chapters all over the country. They are despatched by Army transport in the early autumn in order to reach the foreign ports and posts of the U. S. services in time to be hung on the Christmas trees. Giving the remembrances from home is the outgrowth of a plan adopted by the Red Cross prior to the World War when so many National Guard regiments were on the Mexican border.

for the employees, demonstrations of first aid treatment in which the employees are regularly instructed. The kitchen and dining room will also be used for cafeteria purposes for the employees at such times as the occasion demands. These rooms are all provided with modern efficient types of illumination of various styles.

The unique electric house-heating system, the only one of its kind to be installed in the New England states is installed in the heater room, located immediately back of the kitchen. This system, which marks a forward step in the use of electricity for home purposes is entirely automatic and when properly adjusted will require no attention from the time it is started in the fall until its use is discontinued in the spring.

The Greenfield Electric Light and Power company obtains its power from water power developments, and immediately after the factories close down at night there is a decrease in the demands for power on the system. The electric heating system is designed to make use of this off peak load. The system consists of a large tank of water in which is immersed electrical heating units. The entire tank is enclosed in a healthy insulated blanket of rock wood and is designed on exactly the same principle as a thermos bottle. During the periods when off-peak power is available, electricity is permitted to flow through the heating elements in the bottom of the tank and the heat generated thereby is stored for use during the hours of the day when there is a large demand for power. Throughout the day this water is circulated as desired, being entirely controlled by automatic thermostats. The heating of the tank and the circulation of water is controlled by an electric clock. It will not permit the electrical energy to be used for storing heat during the working hours. It automatically changes the temperature in the working space of the office, having a high temperature for the working hours and a lower temperature for night. At the present time the system is set for a temperature of 70 degrees during the working hours and 55 degrees during the night.

An electric water heater and vacuum cleaner system which is piped to all parts of the building is also in this room.

Across the entire front end of the basement is the high tension transfer station and substation. This is one of the most important rooms in the entire building. The underground cables which have just been installed from our substation at Power Court all terminate here, and by means of transfer switches, the various sections of the downtown district of Greenfield can be changed to different cables in case of trouble. By this means it is expected that much more continuous and reliable service will be given to the community than has ever been available in the past.

As a lad, we confess, we were not one of those who looked forward to the opening of school with any degree of anticipation. We imagine we were not unlike most of the boys then as well as now. We believe we know yet just how the small boy feels when he thinks that school will open in another week and vacation days will be over.

15,000,000 people attend the movies each week in the United States.

United States Mails

The Post Office department says that mail is dropped in the box, picked up by the collector, and placed on the facing table in the post office. It is then picked up with all the stamps arranged according to the size of the envelope and run through the canceling machine. The mail is then taken to a primary distribution case and there assorted into various boxes; then taken to a state case where it is distributed according to offices in the state and tied out in bundles according to train schedules. When it reaches the office to which it is addressed it is distributed by clerks to routes in the city by numbers, each number representing a city carrier. The city carrier on his next trip delivers the mail to the street address of the party addressed.

Two of a Kind

Thomas Hardy was once dining with Gen. Sir Redvers Buller of Boer war memory, when the subject arose of social blunders. Buller described what he called a "double-barreled" one of his own, says Mrs. Florence Emily Hardy in "The Later Years of Thomas Hardy." He inquired of a lady next him at dinner who a certain gentleman was, "like a hippopotamus," sitting opposite them. He was the lady's husband.

Buller was so depressed by the disaster that had befallen him that he could not get it off his mind. Hence at a dinner the next evening he sought the condolences of an elderly lady, to whom he related his misfortune. And remembered when he had told the story that his listener was the gentleman's mother!

Off to the movies :::

Leisure time is the lot of this young wife. Oh yes, dinner will be served on time--piping hot--brown roasted and done to a turn.

You see our young wife has placed all the vegetables and a roast in the electric oven. She has set the automatic time controls to turn on the heat at 3:30 and to shut off at 5:45. So at the usual time dinner will be served perfectly cooked. And with it all our young wife has enjoyed herself all the afternoon.

Now this is being done everywhere, right now, today.

You, too, may have this comfort, convenience and leisure time with an automatic electric range.

West Northfield-South Vernon

The business meeting at the South Vernon Church that was appointed to be held last Friday evening on account of the storm was adjourned to be held at the same place next Monday evening, Nov. 2 at 7:30 p. m. It is earnestly requested that all the church members and all others who are not members of this church but are interested in the future welfare of this church, shall attend this meeting.

At the South Vernon Church last Sunday evening Rev. George Tyler gave a very interesting report and account of his attendance at the Conn. and Western Mass. conference which was recently held in Wallingford, Conn., also of the different societies and organizations at this business meeting that was held at Boston, Mass. last week. A. A. Dunklee and Rev. F. H. Leavitt attended this latter business meeting.

The services at the South Vernon church next Sunday will be at 10:45 a. m. Sermon by Rev. George A. Gray of Fall River, Mass. Church School following at 12:05 p. m., Union evening service at the Vernon Chapel at 7:30 p. m., Midweek service at the Vernon Home Thursday at 7:30 p. m. speaker, Rev. George A. Gray.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Hicks of Stratford, Conn. were guests of their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Allen and family last week Thursday night. They also called on other old friends in town. They went to Providence, R. I. on Friday. Mr. Hicks has a responsible position on board a yacht, employed by a millionaire. Mr. and Mrs. Hicks used to live in this community in their youth and they had not been back for a long time.

Rev. George E. Tyler resigned his pastorate at South Vernon which took effect Oct. 1, much to the regret of some of the people. Mrs. Tyler was a great help in the music and other church work.

Robert Bruce who has been ill and unable to attend school for about two weeks returned to Mt. Hermon on this week Tuesday.

Miss Lillian Stebbins who has spent the summer with friends in East Northfield and this town planned to return to her home in St. Petersburg, Florida on Tuesday, Oct. 21.

Mrs. George E. Tyler held a dinner party last Sunday in honor of her son, W. Carey Tyler's birthday, the following Monday. The guests who were present were Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Tyler and three daughters, Misses Mariette, Marion and Isabelle and Mrs. George Tyler's sister, Mrs. J. E. Lawrence all of this town, making a happy family of eight who sat down to a bountiful dinner. Another sister, Mrs. Frank L. Hunt and daughter, Miss Gertrude of Brattleboro joined the happy group later in the day.

Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Houghtaling of Holyoke, Mass., and Mr. and Mrs. F. O. Brownham of Springfield, Mass., were visitors of Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Skilling last Sunday.

The friends of Mr. and Mrs. Lester F. Hill of Springfield, Mass. were greatly shocked when they heard the sad news as it came over the wire, that their 10 year old and only son Lester, Jr., had been killed in an automobile accident on Saturday afternoon at Springfield Mass. Mrs. F. P. Tawson and son Francis attended the funeral of the manly little fellow Mr. and Mrs. Hill and family have the heartfelt sympathy of this community in their irreparable loss.

Miss Ruth French after pending a few days vacation at her home in West Northfield, Mass., returned to her school work in East Bridgewater, Mass. Sunday.

Alden French, Jr., and "Buddie" French are ill with whooping cough. They were put under quarantine on Sunday.

The Arliss Genius Cultivated by His Years of Work

The secret of the remarkable success enjoyed by George Arliss for thirty years on the American stage and screen is undoubtedly due to the long period of training he received as a struggling young actor, touring the English provinces.

The Arliss genius developed slowly. The master artist, whose crowning achievement in the minds of many is his Vitaphone version of "Old English" for Warner Bros., the current attraction at the Auditorium in Brattleboro spent many long and weary years learning the business of character acting.

After a moderate success in England and several successful seasons with a supporting cast in London, Patrick Campbell to play four months. Arliss came to America with Mrs. He remained, however, season after season until a wise producer recognized his great ability and starred him in his first play, Molnar's "Devil." As a consequence the English actor became the dean of American stage stars and later of the American screen.

"Old English" was the greatest stage success in which Arliss appeared. The Galesworthy Drama has been faithfully and beautifully transferred to the screen with an impressive supporting cast under the able direction of Alfred E. Geen.

"Old English" will be shown at the Auditorium Monday and Tuesday, Nov. 3 and 4th.

Why Not Stop Crime News at the Source?

"The people of Portugal have become alarmed over the prevalence of crime and the Portuguese government has met the emergency by ordering the newspapers to minimize their reports. It appears to escape the attention of the Portuguese government, as it does the good people who would like to see a similar censorship in America, that the best way to minimize such reports is to suppress the criminals," says the San Francisco Chronicle.

There is a mistaken belief in our own country that it is possible to check crime by passing more laws restricting law-abiding citizens on the theory that the criminal will thereby be restrained.
